SHAKE-SPEARES, SONNETS

Rom fairest creatures we defire increase. That thereby beauties Rose might neuer die, But as the riper should by time decease, His tender heire might beare his memory: But thou contracted to thine owne bright eyes, Feed'st thy lights flame with selfe substantiall fewell, Making a famine where aboundance lies, Thy felfe thy foe, to thy fweet felfe too cruell: Thou that art now the worlds fresh ornament, And only herauld to the gaudy fpring, Within thine owne bud burieft thy content, And tender chorle maket wast in niggarding: Pitty the world, or else this glutton be,

To eare the worlds due, by the graue and thee.

7 THen fortie Winters shall beseige thy brow, And digge deep trenches in thy beauties field, Thy youthes proud livery fo gaz'd on now, Wil be a totter'd weed of smal worth held: Then being askt, where all thy beautie lies, Where all the treasure of thy lusty daies; To fay within thine owne deepe funken eyes, Were an all-eating shame, and thristlesse praise. How much more praise deseru'd thy beauties vie, If thou couldst answere this faire child of mine Shall fum my count, and make my old excuse Propuing his beautie by fucceffion thine.

SHAKE-SPEARES

This were to be new made when thou art ould, And fee thy blood warme when thou feel'ft it could,

Ooke in thy glasse and tell the face thou vewest,
Now is the time that face should forme an other,
Whose fresh repaire if now thou not renewest,
Thou doo'st beguile the world, vnblesse some mother.
For where is she so faire whose vn-eard wombe
Distaines the tillage of thy husbandry?
Or who is he so fond will be the tombe,
Of his selfe loue to stop posterity?
Thou art thy mothers glasse and she in thee
Calls backe the louely Aprill of her prime,
So thou through windowes of thine age shalt see,
Dispight of wrinkles this thy goulden time.
But if thou live remembred not to be,
Die single and thine Image dies with thee.

Nthrifty louelinesse why dost thou spend, Vpon thy selfe thy beauties legacy?
Natures bequest gives nothing but doth lend, And being stanck she lends to those are free:
Then beautious nigard why doost thou abuse, The bountious largesse given thee to give?
Profitles vierer why doost thou vie
So great a summe of summes yet can'st not live?
For having traffike with thy selfe alone,
Thou of thy selfe thy sweet selfe dost deceave,
Then how when nature calls thee to be gone,
What acceptable Audit can'st thou leave?
Thy vnus d beauty must be tomb'd with thee,
Which ysed lives th'executor to be.

Those howers that with gentle worke did frame,
The louely gaze where every eye doth dwell
Will play the tirants to the very same,

And that unfaire which fairely doth excell: For weuer resting time leads Summer on, To hidious winter and confounds him there, Sap checkt with frost and lustie leau's quite gon. Beauty ore-snow'd and barenes euery where. Then were not summers distillation left A liquid prisoner pent in walls of glasse. Beauties effect with beauty were bereft, Nor it nor noe remembrance what it was. But flowers distil'd though they with winter meete, Leese but their show, their substance still lives sweet.

Hen let not winters wragged hand deface, In thee thy fummer ere thou be distil'd: Make fweet some viall; treasure thou some place, With beautits treasure etc it be selfe kil'd: That vie is not forbidden viery, Which happies those that pay the willing lone; That's for thy selfe to breed an other thee, Or ten times happier be it ten for one, Ten times thy selfe were happier then thou art, If ten of thine ten times refigur d thee, Then what could death doe if thou should'st depart, Leaving thee living in posterity? Be not selfe-wild for thou art much too faire,

To be deaths conquest and make wormes thine heire.

Oe in the Orient when the gracious light, Lifts vp his burning head, each vnder eye Doth homage to his new appearing fight, Seruing with lookes his facred maiesty, And having climb'd the steepe vp heavenly hill, Refembling strong youth in his middle age, Yet mortall lookes adore his beauty still, Attending on his goulden pilgrimage: But when from high-most pich with wery car,

Like feeble age he reeleth from the day, The eyes (fore dutious) now converted are From his low tractand looke an other way: So thou, thy felfe out-going in thy noon: Vnlok'd on diest vnlesse thou get a sonne.

M Vsick to heare, why hear'st thou musick sadly, Sweets with sweets warre not, ioy delights in ioy: Why lou'st thou that which thou receaust not gladly, Or else receau'st with pleasure thine annoy? If the true concord of well tuned founds, By vnions married do offend thine care, They do but sweetly chide thee, who confounds In fingleneffe the parts that thou should'st beare: Marke how one string sweet husband to an other, Scrike each in each by mutuall ordering; Resembling sier, and child, and happy mother, Who all in one, one pleasing note do sing: Whose speechlesse song being many, seeming one,

Sings this to thee thou fingle wilt proue none.

Sit for feare to wet a widdowes eye, I That thou consum's thy selfe in single life? Ah: if thou isfulesse shalt hap to die, The world will waile thee like a makeleffe wife, The world wilbe thy widdow and still weepe, That thou no forme of thee hast left behind, When every privat widdow well may keepe, By childrens eyes, her husbands shape in minde: Looke what an vnthrift in the world doth spend Shifts but his place, for still the world inioges it But beauties waste hathin the world an end, And kept vnysde the vser so destroyes it:

No love toward others in that bolome fits That on himselfe such murdrous shame commits.

TΩ

POr shame deny that thou bear's loue to any
Who for thy selfe art so vnprouident
Graunt if thou wilt, thou art belou'd of many,
But that thou none lou st is most euident:
For thou art so possess with murdrous hate,
That gainst thy selfe thou sticks not to conspire,
Seeking that beautious roose to ruinate
Which to repaire should be thy chiefe desire:
O change thy thought, that I may change my minde,
Shall hate be fairer log'd then gentle loue?
Be as thy presence is gracious and kind,
Or to thy selfe at least kind harted proue,
Make thee an other selfe for loue of me,
That beauty still may liue in thine or thee.

II

Sfaft as thou shalt wane so fast thou grow's,
In one of thine, from that which thou departest,
And that fresh bloud which yongly thou bestow's,
Thou maist call thine, when thou from youth convertest,
Herein lives wisdome, beauty, and increase,
Without this follie, age, and could decay,
If all were minded so, the times should cease,
And threescoore yeare would make the world away:
Let those whom nature hath not made for store,
Harsh, feature lesse, and rude, barrenly perrish,
Looke whom she best indow'd, she gave the more;
Which bountious guist thou shouldst in bounty cherrish,
She caru'd thee for her seale, and ment therby,
Thou shouldst print more, not let that coppy die.

When I doe count the clock that tels the time, And see the braue day funck in hidious night, When I behold the violet past prime, And sable curls or filuer'd ore with white: When lofty trees I see barren of leaues, Which erst from heat did canopie the herd

SHAKE-SPEARES

And Sommers greene all girded up in sheates
Borne on the beare with white and brissly beards
Then of thy beauty do I question make
That thou among the wastes of time must goe,
Since sweets and beauties do them-selues forsake,
And die as fast as they see others grow,
And nothing gainst Times sieth can make defence
Saue breed to braue him, when he takes thee hence.

That you were your selfe, but loue you are
No longer yours, then you your selfe here liue,
Against this cumming end you should prepare,
And your sweet semblance to some other giue.
So should that beauty which you hold in lease
Find no determination, then you were
You selfe again after your selfes decease,
When your sweet issue your sweet forme should beare.
Who lets so faire a house fall to decay,
Which husbandry in honour might vphold,
Against the stormy gusts of winters day
And barren rage of deaths eternall cold?
O none but vnthrists, deare my loue you know,
You had a Father, let your Son say so.

And yet me thinkes I have Aftronomy,
But not to tell of good, or evil lucke,
Of plagues, of dearths, or feafons quallity,
Nor can I fortune to breefe mynuits tell;
Pointing to each his thunder, raine and winde,
Or fay with Princes if it shal go wel
By oft predict that I in heaven finde.
But from thine eies my kno wledge I derive,
And constant stars in them I read such art
As truth and beautie shal together thrive
If from thy selfe, to store thou wouldst convert:

Or else of thee this I prognosticate, Thy end is Truthes and Beauties doome and date.

I٢

17 Hen I consider every thing that growes Holds in perfection bur a little moment. That this huge stage presenteth nought but showes Whereon the Stars in fecret influence comment. When I perceive that men as plants increase, Cheared and checkt euen by the selfe-same skie; Vaunt in their youthfull sap, at height decrease, And were their braue state out of memory. Then the conceit of this inconstant stay. Sets you most rich in youth before my fight, Where wastfull time debateth with decay To change your day of youth to fullied night,

And all in war with Time for love of you As he takes from you, I ingraft you new.

D Vt wherefore do not you a mightier waie Make warre vppon this bloudie tirant time? And fortifie your felfe in your decay With meanes more bleffed then my barren rime? Now stand you on the top of happie houres, And many maiden gardens yet vnfet, With vertuous wish would beare your living flowers, Much liker then your painted counterfeit: So should the lines of life that life repaire Which this (Times penfel or my pupill pen ) Neither in inward worth nor outward faire Can make you liue your felfe in eies of men, To giue away your selfe, keeps your selfe still,

And you must live drawne by your owne sweet skill,

WHo will beleeue my verse in time to come If it were fild with your most high deserts?

Though

SHAKE-SPHARES

Though yet heaven knowes it is but as a tombe Which hides your life, and shewes not halfe your parts: If I could write the beauty of your eyes, And in fresh numbers number all your graces, The age to come would fay this Poet lies, Such heavenly touches nere toucht earthly faces. So should my papers (yellowed with their age) Be scorn'd, like old men of lesse truth then tongue, And your true rights be termd a Poets rage, And stretched miter of an Antique song. But were some childe of yours aliue that time.

You should live twife in it, and in my rime,

CHall I compare thee to a Summers day? Thou are more louely and more temperate: Rough windes do thake the darling buds of Maie, And Sommers lease hath all too short a date: Sometime too hot the eye of heatten shines, And often is his gold complexion dimm'd, And every faire from faire some-time declines, By chance, or natures changing course vntrim'd: But thy eternall Sommer shall not fade, Nor loose possession of that faire thou ow'ft, Nor shall death brag thou wandr'st in his shade, When in eternal lines to time thou grow'it, So long as men can breath or eyes can fee,

So long lives this, and this gives life to thee,

Euouring time blunt thou the Lyons pawes, And make the earth deuoure her owne fweet brood, Plucke the keene teeth from the fierce Tygers yawes, And burne the long liu'd Phænix in her blood, Make glad and forry feafons as thou fleet'ft, And do what ere thou wilt swift-sooted time To the wide world and all her fading fweets: But I forbid thee one most hainous crime,

O carue not with thy howers my loues faire brow. Nor draw noe lines there with thine antique pen, Him in thy course vntainted doe allow. For beauties patterne to fucceding men.

Yet doe thy worst ould Time dispight thy wrong, My loue shall in my verse euer liue young.

Womans face with natures owne hand painted, Haste thou the Master Mistris of my passion, A womans gentle hait but not acquainted With shifting change as is false womens fashion, An eye more bright then theirs, leffe false in rowling: Gilding the object where-vpon it gazeth, A man in hew all Hews in his controwling, Which steales mens eyes and womens soules amaseth, And for a woman wert thou first created, Till nature as the wrought thee feil a dotinge, And by addition me of thee defeated, By adding one thing to my purpose nothing. But fince the prickt thee out for womens pleasure,

Mine bethy loue and thy loues vie their treasure.

Ois it not with me as with that Muse, Stird by a painted beauty to his verse, Who heaven it selfe for ornament doth vse, And every faire with his faire doth reherfe, Making a coopelment of proud compare With Sunne and Moone, with earth and feas rich gems: With Aprills first borne flowers and all things rare, That heavens ayre in this huge rondure hems, O let me true irrloue but truly write, And then beleeue me, my loue is as faire, As any mothers childe, though not so bright As those gould candells fixt in heavens ayer: Let them fay more that like of heare-fay well,

I will not prayfe that purpose not to sell.

SHAKE-SPEARES

M Y glasse shall not perswade me I am ould, So long as youth and thou are of one date, But when in thee times forrwes I behould, Then look I death my daies should expiate. For all that beauty that doth couer thee, Is but the feemely rayment of my heart, Which in thy brest doth line, as thine in me, How can I then be elder then thou art? O therefore love be of thy felfe so wary, As I not for my felfe, but for thee will, Bearing thy heart which I will keepe so chary As tender nurse her babe from faring ill, Presume not on thy heart when mine is slaine,

Thou gau'ft me thine not to give backe againe.

S an unperfect actor on the stage, A Who with his feare is put besides his part, Or some fierce thing repleat with too much rage, Whose strengths abondance weakens his owne heart; So I for feare of trust, forget to say, The perfect ceremony of loues right, And in mine owne loues strength seeme to decay, Ore-charg'd with burthen of mine owne loues might: O let my books be then the eloquence, And domb prefagers of my speaking brest, Who pleade for loue, and look for recompence, More then that tonge that more hath more exprest.

O learne to read what filent loue hath writ. To heare wit eies belongs to loues fine wiht.

Ine eye hath play'd the painter and hath steeld, hy beauties forme in table of my heart, My body is the frame wherein ti's held, And perspective it is best Painters art. For through the Painter must you see his skill,

To finde where your true Image pictur'd lies, Which in my bosomes shop is hanging stil, That hath his windowes glazed with thine eves: Now see what good-turnes eyes for eies haue done, Mine eyes haue drawne thy shape, and thine for me Are windowes to my brest, where-through the Sun Delights to peepe, to gaze therein on thee

Yet eyes this cunning want to grace their are They draw but what they see, know not the hare

Et those who are in fauor with their stars,
Of publike honour and proud titles bost,
Whilst I whome fortune of such tryumph bars
Vnlookt for ioy in that I honour most;
Great Princes fauorites their faire leaues spread,
But as the Marygold at the suns eye,
And in them-selues their pride lies buried,
For at a frowne they in their glory die.
The painefull warrier samosed for worth,
After a thousand victories once foild,
Is from the booke of honour rased quite,
And all the rest forgot for which he toild:
Then happy I that love and am beloved

Then happy I that love and am beloved Where I may not remove, nor be removed.

Ord of my loue, to whome in vaffalage
Thy merrithath my dutie strongly knit;
To thee I send this written ambassage
To witnesse duty, not to shew my wit.
Duty so great, which wit so poore as mine
May make seeme bare, in wanting words to shew it;
But that I hope some good conceipt of thine
In thy soules thought (all naked) will bestow it:
Til what seeme start that guides my moung,
Points on me gratiously with same aspect,
And puts apparrell on my tottered louing,

SHAKE-SPEARES,

To show me worthy of their sweet respect,

Then may I dare to boast how I doe loue thee,

Til then, not show my head where thou maist proueme

27

The deare repose for lims with trauaill tired,
But then begins a fourny in my head
To worke my mind, when boddies work's expired.
For then my thoughts (from far where I abide)
Intend a zelous pilgrimage to thee;
And keepe my drooping eye-lids open wide,
Looking on darknes which the blind doe see.
Saue that my soules imaginary fight
Presents their shaddoe to my sightles view,
Which like a iewell (hunge in gastly night)
Makes blacke night beautious, and her old face new.
Loe thus by day my lims, by night my mind,

For thee, and for my felfe, noe quiet finde.

That am debard the benifit of reil?

When daies oppression is not eazd by night,
But day by night and night by day opress.

And each (though enimes to ethers raigne)
Doe in consent shake hands to torture me,
The one by toyle, the other to complaine
How far I toyle, still farther off from thee.
I tell the Day to please him thou art bright,
And do'st him grace when clouds doe blot the heauen:
So flatter I the swart complexiond night,
When sparkling stars twire not thou guil'st th' eauen.
But day doth daily draw my forrowes longer, (stronger And night doth nightly make greefes length seeme

WHen in difgrace with Fortune and mens eyes, I all alone beweepe my out-cast state,

And

And trouble deafe heauen with my bootleffe cries,
And looke vpon my felfe and curfe my fate.
Wishing me like to one more rich in hope,
Featur'd like him, like him with friends possess,
Desiring this mans art, and that mans skope,
With what I most inioy contented least,
Yet in these thoughts my selfe almost despising,
Haplye I thinke on thee, and then my state,
(Like to the Larke at breake of daye arising)
From sullen earth sings himns at Heauens gate,
For thy sweet lone remembred such welth brings,
That then I skorne to change my state with Kings.

Hen to the Sessions of sweet silent thought,
I sommon up remembrance of things past,
I sigh the lacke of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new waile my deare times waste:
Then can I drowne an eye(vn-vs dto flow)
For precious friends hid in deaths dateles night,
And weepe a fresh loues long since canceld woe,
And mone th'expence of many a vannisht sight.
Then can I greeue at greeuances fore-gon,
And heauily from woe to woe tell ore
The sad account of sore-bemoned mone,
Which I new pay, as if not payd before.
But if the while I thinke on thee (deare friend)
All losses are restord, and forrowes end.

hy bosome is indeared with all hearts,
Which I by lacking have supposed dead,
And there raignes Loue and all Loues louing parts,
And all those friends which I thought buried.
How many a holy and obsequious teare
Hath deare religious loue stolne from mine eye,
As interest of the dead, which now appeare,
But things remou'd that hidden in there lie.

SHARE-SPEARES

Thou art the graue where buried love doth live, Hung with the tropheis of my lovers gon, Who all their parts of me to thee did give, That due of many, now is thine alone.

Their images I lou'd, I view in thee, And thou(all they) haft all the all of me.

22

F thou survive my well contented daie,
When that churle death my bones with dust shall cover
And shalt by fortune once more re-survive:
These poore rude lines of thy deceased Lovers
Compare them with the bettring of the time,
And though they be out-stript by every pen,
Reserve them for my love, not for their rime,
Exceeded by the hight of happier men.
On then voutsase me but this loving thought,
Had my friends Muse growne with this growing age,
A dearer birth then this his love had brought
To march in ranckes of better equipage:
But since he died and Poets better prove,
Theirs for their stile ile read, his for his love.

For the mountaine tops with foueraine eie,
Kiffing with golden face the meddowes greene;
Guilding pale streames with heauenly alcumy:
Anon permit the basest cloudes to ride,
With oughy rack on his celestiall face,
And from the for-lorne world his visage hide
Stealing vneene to west with this disgrace:
Euen so my Sunne one early morne did shine,
With all triumphant splendor on my brow,
But out alack, he was but one houre mine,
The region cloude hath mask'd him from me now.
Yet him for the samp loue no whit distances,
Suns of the world may staine, whe heavens sun stainteh.

Hy didft thou promise such a beautious day,
And make me trauaile forth without my cloake,
To let bace cloudes ore-take me in my way,
Hiding thy brau'ry in their rotten smoke.
Tis not enough that through the cloude thou breake,
To dry the raine on my storme-beaten sace,
For no man well of such a salue can speake,
That heales the wound, and cures not the disgrace:
Nor can thy shame give phisicke to my griefe,
Though thou repent, yet I have still the losse,
Th' offenders forrow lends but weake reliefe
To him that beares the strong offenses losse.
Ah but those teares are pearle which thy love sheeds,
And they are ritch, and ransome all ill deeds.

O more bee green'd at that which thou hast done,
Roses have thornes, and filuer fountaines mud,
Cloudes and cclipses staine both Moone and Sunne,
And loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud.
Allmen make faults, and even I in this,
Authorizing thy trespas with compare,
My selfe corrupting falving thy amisse,
Excusing their fins more then their fins are;
For to thy sensuall fault I bring in sence,
Thy adverse party is thy Advocate,
And gainst my selfe a lawfull plea commence,
Such civili war is in my love and hate,
That I an accessary needs must be,
To that sweet theese which sourcely robs from me.

Et me confesse that we two must be twaine,
Although our vndeuided loues are one:
So shall those blots that do with me remaine,
Without thy helpe, by me be borne alone.
In our two loues there is but one respect,

Though

OHARE-SPEARES

Though in our liues a seperable spight,
Which though it alter not loues sole effect,
Yet doth it steale sweet houres from loues delight,
I may not euer-more acknowledge thee,
Least my bewailed guilt should do thee shame,
Nor thou with publike kindnesse honour me,
Vnlesse thou take that honour from thy name:
But doe not so, I loue thee in such sort.
As thou being mine, mine is thy good report.

S a decrepit father takes delight,
To fee his active childe do deeds of youth,
So I, made lame by Fortunes dearest spight
Take all my comfort of thy worth and truth.
For whether beauty, birth, or wealth, or wit,
Or any of these all, or all, or more
Intitled in their parts, do crowned sit,
I make my love ingrasted to this store:
So then I am not lame, poore, nor dispiss d,
Whilst that this shadow doth such substance give,
That I in thy abundance am suffic d,
And by a part of all thy glory live:
Looke what is best, that best I wish in thee,
This wish I have, then ten times happy me.

How can my Muse want subject to inuent
While thou dost breath that poor'st into my verse,
Thine owne sweet argument, to excellent,
For eue y vulgar paper to rehearse:
Oh give thy selfe the thankes if ought in me,
Worthy perusal stand against thy sight,
For who's so dumbe that cannot write to thee,
When thou thy selfe dost give invention light?
Be thou the tenth Muse, ten times more in worth
Then those old nine which rimers invocate,
And he that calls on thee, let him bring forth

Eternal numbers to out-live long date.
If my flight Muse doe please these curious daies,
The paine be mine, but thine shal be the praise.

H how thy worth with manners may I finge,
When thou artall the better part of me?
What can mine owne praise to mine owne selfe bring;
And what is't but mine owne when I praise thee,
Euen for this, let vs deuided liue,
And our deare loue loose name of fingle one,
That by this seperation I may give:
That due to thee which thou deservit alone:
Oh absence what a torment wouldst thou prove,
Were it not thy source leisure gave sweet leave,
To entertaine the time with thoughts of love,
VV hich time and thoughts so sweetly dost deceive.
And that thou teachest how to make one twaine,
By praising him here who doth hence remaine.

What hast thou then more then shou hadst before?
No loue,my loue, that thou maist true loue call,
All mine was thine, before thou hadst this more:
Then if for my loue, thou my loue receivest,
I cannot blame thee, for my loue thou viest,
But yet be blam'd, if thou this selfe deceauest
By wilfull taste of what thy selfe resuscit.
I doe for give thy robb'rie gentle theese
Although thou steale thee all my poverty:
And yet loue knowes it is a greater griefe
To be are loues wrong, then hates knowne injury.
Lascivious grace in whom all it welshowes,
Kill me with spights yet we must not be foes.

Hose pretty wrongs that liberty commits,

Thy beautie, and thy yeares full well befits,
For still temptation followes where thou art.
Gentle thou art, and therefore to be wonne,
Beautious thou art, therefore to be assailed.
And when a woman woes, what womans sonne,
Will sourcely leave her till he have prevailed.
Aye me, but yet thou mighst my seate for beare,
And chide thy beauty, and thy straying youth,
Who lead thee in their ryot even there
Where thou art forst to breake a two-fold truthe
Hers by thy beauty tempting her to thee,
Thine by thy beautie beeing salse to me.

Hat thou hast her it is not all my griese,
And yet it may be said I lou'd her deerely,
That she hath thee is of my wayling cheese,
A losse in loue that touches me more neerely.
Louing offendors thus I will excuse yee,
Thou doos loue her, because thou knowst I loue her,
And for my sake even so doth she abuse me,
Suffring my friend for my sake to approove her,
If I loose thee, my losse is my loves gaine,
And loosing her, my friend hath sound that losse,
Both sinde each other, and I loose both twaine,
And both for my sake lay on me this crosse,
But here's the ioy, my friend and I are one,
Sweete slattery, then she loves but me alone.

Hen most I winke then doe mine eyes best see,
For all the day they view things vnrespected,
But when I sleepe, in dreames they looke on thee,
And darkely bright, are bright in darke directed.
Then thou whose shaddow shaddowes doth make bright,
How would thy shadowes forme, forme happy show,
To the cleere day with thy much cleerer light,
When to vn-seeing eyes thy shade shines so?

How

How would (I say ) mine eyes be blessed made. By looking on thee in the living day? When in dead night their faire imperfect shade. Through heavy sleepe on fightlesse eyes doth stay? All dayes are nights to fee till I fee thee, And nights bright daics when dreams do shew thee me,

F the dull substance of my flesh were thought, Iniurious distance should not stop my way, For then dispight of space I would be brought, From limits farre remote, where thou dooft stay, No matter then although my foote did stand Vpon the farthest earth remoou'd from thee, For nimble thought can jumpe both fea and land, As foone as thinke the place where he would be. But ah, thought kills me that I am not thought To leape large lengths of miles when thou art gone, But that so much of earth and water wrought, I must attend, times leasure with my mone.

Receiving naughts by elements to floe, But heavie teares, badges of eithers woe.

He other two, flight ayre, and purging fire, Are both with thee, where ever I abide, The first my thought, the other my desire, These present absent with swift mution slide. For when these quicker Elements are gone In tender Embassie of loue to thee, My life being made of foure, with two alone, Sinkes downe to death, opprest with melancholie. Vitill lines composition be recured, By those swift messengers return'd from thee, Who even but now come back againe assured, Of their faire health, recounting it to me. This told, I ioy, but then no longer glad,

I send them back againe and straight grow sad.

Mine

SHAKE-SPEARES.

Ine eye and heart are at a mortall warre, How to deuide the conquest of thy sight, Mine eye, my heart their pictures fight would barre, My heart, mine eye the freeedome of that right, My heart doth plead that thou in him dooft lye, (A closet neuer pearst with christall eyes) But the defendant doth that plea deny, And fayes in him their faire appearance lyes. To fide this title is impannelled A quest of thoughts, all tennants to the heart, And by their verdict is determined The cleere eyes moyitie, and he deare hearts part. As thus, mine eyes due is their outward part,

And my hearts right, their inward love of heart.

Eswixt mine eye and heart a league is tooke, And each doth good turnes now vnto the other, When that mine eye is familht for a looke, Or heart in loue with fighes himselfe doth smother; With my loues picture then my eye doth feast, And to the painted banquet bids my heart: An other time mine eye is my hearts gueft, And in his thoughts of love doth share a part. So either by thy picture or my loue, Thy seife away, are present still with me, For thou nor farther then my thoughts canst moue, And I am still with them, and they with thee.

Or if they fleepe, thy picture in my fight Awakes my heart, to hearts and eyes delight.

Y Ow carefull was I when I tooke my way, LEach trifle vnder truest barres to thrust, That to my vie it might vn-vied stay From hands of falsehood, in sure wards of trust? But thou, to whom my iewels trifles are.

Most worthy comfort, now my greatest griefe, Thou best of deerest, and mine onely care, Art left the prey of enery vulgar theefe. I hee haue I not lockt vp in any cheft, Saue where thou art not, though I feele thou art, Within the gentle closure of my brest, From whence at pleasure thou maist come and part, And even thence thou wilt be stolne I feare,

For truth produces the euish for a prize so deare,

A Gainst that time ( if euer that time come )
When I shall see thee frowne on my defects, When as thy loue hath cast his vemost summe, Cauld to that audite by aduif d respects, Against that time when thou shalt strangely passe, And scarcely greete me with that sunne thine eye, When love converted from the thing it was Shall reasons finde of settled grauitie. Against that time do I insconce me here Within the knowledge of mine owne defart, And this my hand, against my selfe vprease, To guard the lawfull reasons on thy part, To leave poore me, thou hast the strength of lawes,

Since why to love, I can alledge no cause.

TOw heauie doe I iourney on the way, When what I feeke (my wearie trauels end) Doth teach that ease and that repose to say Thus farre the miles are measured from thy friend. The beast that beares me, tired with my woe, Plods duly on, to beare that waight in me, As if by some instinct the wretch did know His rider lou d not speed being made from thee: The bloody spurre cannot prouoke him on, That fome-times anger thrulls into his hide, Which heavily he answers with a grone,

More

More sharpe to me then spurring to his side, For that same grone doth put this in my mind, My greefelies onward and my joy behind.

Hus can my loue excuse the slow offence, Of my dull bearer, when from thee I speed, From where thou art, why shoulld I hast me thence, Till I returne of posting is noe need. O what excuse will my poore beast then find, When swift extremity can seeme but slow, Then should I spurre though mounted on the wind, In winged speed no motion shall I know, Then can no horse with my desire keepe pace, Therefore defire (of perfects lone being made) Shall naigh noe dullflesh in his fiery race, But love, for love, thus shall excuse my iade, Since from thee going he went wilfull flow, Towards thee ile run, and give him leave to goe.

O am I as the rich whose blessed key, Can bring him to his fweet vp-locked treafure, The which he will not eury hower furuay, For blunting the fine point of feldome pleafure. Therefore are feasts so sollemne and so rare, Since fildom comming in the long yeare fet, Like stones of worth they thinly placed are, Or captaine Iewells in the carconet. So is the time that keepes you as my cheft, Or as the ward-robe which the robe doth hide, To make some speciall instant speciall blest, By new vnfoulding his imprison'd pride.

Bleffed are you whose worthinesse gives skope, Being had to tryumph, being lackt to hope.

WHat is your substance, whereof are you made, That millions of strange shaddowes on you tend?

Since euery one, hath euery one, one shade, And you but one, can every shaddow lend: Describe Adonis and the counterfet, Is poorely immitated after you, On Hellens cheeke all art of beautie set, And you in Grecian tires are painted news-Speake of the spring, and foyzon of the yeare, The one doth shaddow of your beautie show, The other as your bountie doth appeare, And you in enery bleffed shape we know. In all externall grace you have fome part,

But you like none, none you for constant heart.

H how much more doth beautie beautious feeme. By that fweet ornament which truth doth give, The Rose lookes faire, but fairer we it deeme For that sweet odor, which doth in it liue: The Canker bloomes haue full as deepe a die, As the perfumed tincture of the Roses, Hang on fuch thornes, and play as wantonly, When fommers breath their masked buds discloses: But for their virtue only is their show, They live vnwoo'd, and vnrespected fade, Die to themsclues . Sweet Roses doe not so. Of their sweet deathes, are sweetest odors made: And so of you, beautious and louely youth, When that shall vade, by verse distils your truth.

Of Princes shall out-live this powrefull rime, But you shall shine more bright in these contents Then vnswept stone, besmeer'd with sluttish time. When wastefull warre shall Statues ouer-turne, And broiles roote out the worke of mafonry, Nor Mars his for ord, nor warres quick fire shall burnes The lining record of your memory. Gainst

Gainst death, and all oblinious emnity
Shall you pace forth, your praise shall still finde roome,
Euen in the eyes of all posterity
That weare this world out to the ending doome.
So til the indgement that your selfe arise,
You line in this, and dwell in loners eies.

Sweet loue renew thy force, be it not faid
Thy edge should blunter be then apetite,
Which but too daie by feeding is alaied,
To morrow sharpned in his former might.
So loue be thou, although too daie thou fill
Thy hungrie eies, euen till they winck with sulnesse,
Too morrow see againe, and doe not kill
The spirit of Loue, with a perpetual dulnesse:
Let this sad Intrim like the Ocean be
Which parts the shore, where two contracted new,
Come daily to the banckes, that when they see.
Returne of loue, more bless may be the view.
As cal it Winter, which being sul of care,
Makes Somers welcome, thrice more wish'd, more rare:

DEing your flaue what should I doe but tend,
Vpon the houres, and times of your desire?
I haue no precious time at al to spend;
Nor services to doe til you require.
Nor dare I chide the world without end houre,
Whilst I(my soueraine) watch the clock for you,
Nor thinke the bitternesse of absence sowre,
VVhen you haue bid your servant once adieue.
Nor dare I question with my ieastous thought,
VVhere you may be, or your affaires suppose,
But like a sad slaue stay and thinke of nought
Saue where you are, how happy you make those,
So true a soole is soue, that in your Will,
(Though you doe any thing) he thinkes no ill.

SONNEYS.

58

Hat God forbid, that made me first your slaue,
I should in thought controule your times of pleasure,
Or at your hand th' account of houres to craue,
Being your vassail bound to staie your leisure.
Oh let me suffer (being at your beck)
Th' imprison'd absence of your libertie,
And patience tame, to sufferance bide each check,
Without accusing you of iniury.
Be where you list, your charter is so strong,
That you your selfe may priviledge your time
To what you will, to you it doth belong,
Your selfe to pardon of selfe-doing crime,
I am to waite, though waiting so be hell,
Not blame your pleasure be it ill or well.

If their bee nothing new, but that which is, Hath beene before, how are our braines beguild, Which laboring for invention beare amisse. The second burthen of a former child? Oh that record could with a back-ward looke, Even of sive hundreth courses of the Sunne, Show me your image in some antique booke, Since minde at first in carrecter was done. That I might see what the old world could say, To this composed wonder of your frame, Whether we are mended, or where better they, Or whether revolution be the same.

Oh fure I am the wits of former daies, To subjects worse have given admiring praise,

I ke as the waves make towards the pibled shore,
So do our minuites hasten to their end,
Each changing place with that which goes before,
In sequent toile all forwards do contend.
Nativity once in the maine of light.

Crawle

Crawies to maturity, wherewith being crown'd, Crooked eclipses gainst his glory fight, And time that gaue, doth now his gift consound. Time doth transsize the florish set on youth, And delues the paralels in beauties brow, Feedes on the rarities of natures truth, And nothing stands but for his sieth to mow.

And yet to times in hope,my verse shall stand Praising thy worth, dispight his cruell hand.

61

Is it thy wil; thy Image should keepe open
My heavy eielids to the weary night?
Dost thou desire my slumbers should be broken,
While shadowes like to thee do mocke my sight?
Is it thy spirit that thou send it from thee
So farre from home into my deeds to prye,
To find out shames and idle houres in me,
The skope and tenure of thy Ielousie.
O no, thy love though much, is not so great,
It is my love that keepes mine cie awake,
Mine owne true love that doth my rest deseat,
To plaie the watch—man ever for thy sake.
For thee watch I, whilst thou dost wake essewhere,
From me farre of, with others all to neere.

Sinne of selfe-loue possesses a mine eie,
And all my soule, and al my euery part;
And for this sinne there is no remedie,
It is so grounded inward in my heart.
Me thinkes no face so gratious is as mine,
No shape so true, no truth of such account,
And for my selfe mine owne worth do define,
As I all other in all worths surmount.
But when my glasse shewes me my selfe indeed
Beated and chopt with tand antiquirie,
Mine owne selfe loue quite contrary I read

Selfe, so felfe louing were iniquity,
T'is thee (my felfe) that for my felfe I praise,
Painting my age with beauty of thy daies.

Cainst my loue shall be as I am now
With times iniurious hand chrusht and ore-worne,
When houres haue dreind his blood and fild his brow
With lines and wrincles, when his youthfull morne
Hath trauaild on to Ages steepie night,
And all those beauties whereof now he's King
Are vanishing, or vanisht out of sight,
Stealing away the treasure of his Spring.
For such a time do 1 now fortisse
Against confounding Ages cruell knife,
That he shall neuer cut from memory
My sweet loues beauty, though my louers life.
His beautie shall in these blacke lines be seene,
And they shall liue, and he in them still greene.

Hen I have feene by times fell hand defaced. The rich proud cost of outworne buried age. When sometime loftie towers I fee downe rased, And brasse eternal slave to mortal rage. When I have seene the hungry Ocean gaine. Advantage on the Kingdome of the shoare, And the firme soile win of the watry maine, Increasing store with losse, and losse with store. When I have seene such interchange of state, Or state it selfe confounded, to deray, Ruine hath taught me thus to ruminate. That Time will come and take my love away.

This thought is as a death which cannot choose. But weepe to have, that which it feares to loose.

Since braffe, nor ftone, nor earth, nor boundleffe fea, But fad mortallity ore-fwaies their power,

How

How with this rage shall beautie hold a plea,
Whose action is no stronger then a flower?
O how shall summers hunny breath hold out,
Against the wrackfull siedge of battring dayes,
When rocks impregnable are not so stoute,
Nor gates of steele so strong but time decayes?
O fearefull meditation, where alack,
Shall times best sewell from times chest lie hid?
Or what strong hand can hold his swift soote back,
Or who his spoile or beautie can forbid?
O none, whese this miracle haue might,
That in black inck my lotte may still shine bright.

66

As to behold defert a begger borne,
And needie Nothing trimd in iollitie,
And purest faith vnhappily forsworne,
And gilded honor shamefully misplast,
And maiden vertue rudely strumpeted,
And right persection wrongfully disgrac'd,
And ftrength by limping sway disabled,
And arte made tung-tide by authoritie,
And Folly (Doctor-like) controuling skill,
And simple-Truth miscalde Simplicitie,
And captine-good attending Captaine ill.
Tyr'd with all these, from these would I be gone,
Saue that to dye, I leave my love alone.

H wherefore with infection should he liue,
And with his presence grace impietie,
That sinne by him aduantage should archive,
And lace it selfe with his societie?
Why should false painting immitate his cheeke,
And steale dead seeing of his living hew?
Why should poore beautie indirectly seeke,
Roses of shaddow, since his Rose is true

Why should he liue, now nature banckrout is, Beggerd of blood to blush through liuely vaines, For she hath no exchecker now but his, And proud of many, liues ypon his gaines? O him she stores, to show what welth she had, In daies long since, before these last so bad.

68

Thus is his cheeke the map of daies out-worne,
When beauty liu'd and dy'ed as flowers do now,
Before these bastard signes of faire were borne,
Or durst inhabit on a liuing brow:
Before the goulden tresses of the dead,
The right of sepulchers, were shorne away,
To liue a scond life on second head,
Ere beauties dead sleece made another gay:
In him those holy antique howers are seene,
Without all ornament, it selfe and true,
Making no summer of an others greene,
Robbing no ould to dresse his beauty new,
And him as for a map doth Nature store,
To shew faulse Art what beauty was of yore.

Those parts of thee that the worlds eye doth view,
Want nothing that the thought of hearts can mend:
All toungs (the voice of soules) giue thee that end,
Vttring bare truth, euen so as foes Commend.
Their outward thus with outward praise is crownd,
But those same toungs that giue thee so thine owne,
In other accents doe this praise confound
By seeing farther then the eye hath showne.
They looke into the beauty of thy mind,
And that in guesse they measure by thy deeds,
Then churls their thoughts (although their eies were kind)
To thy faire flower ad the rancke smell of weeds,
But why thy odor matcheth not thy show,

The folye is this, that thou doest common grow,

 $E_3$

That

That thou are blam'd shall not be thy defect,
For slanders marke was ever yet the faire,
The ornament of beauty is suspect,
A Crow that slies in heavens sweetest ayre.
So thou be good, slander doth but approve,
Their worth the greater beeing woo d of time,
For Canker vice the sweetest buds doth love,
And thou present'st a pure vnstayined prime.
Thou hast past by the ambush of young daies,
Either not assayld, or victor beeing charg'd,
Yet this thy praise cannot be soe thy praise,
To tye vp enuy, evermore inlarged,
If some suspect of ill maskt not thy show,
Then thou alone kingdomes of hearts shouldst owe.

Then you shall heare the surly sullen bell
Giue warning to the world that I am sled
From this vile world with vildest wormes to dwell:
Nay if you read this line, remember not,
The hand that writ it, for I loue you so,
That I in your sweet thoughts would be forgot,
If thinking on me then should make you woe.
O if (I say) you looke vpon this verse,
When I (perhaps) compounded am with clay,
Do not so much as my poore name reherse;
But let your loue even with my life decay.
Least the wise world should looke into your mone,
And mocke you with me after I am gon.

Least the world should taske you to recite,
What merit liu'd in me that you should loue
After my death (deare loue) for get me quite,
For you in me can nothing worthy proue.
Valesse you would deuise some vertuous lye,

To doe more for me then mine owne defert,
And hang more praise vpon deceased I,
Then nigard truth would willingly impart:
O least your true loue may seeme falce in this,
That you for loue speake well of me vntrue,
My name be buried where my body is,
And liue no more to shame nor me, nor you.
For I am shamd by that which I bring forth,
And so should you, to loue things nothing worth.

That time of yeeare thou maist in me behold,
When yellow leaues, or none, or few doe hange
Vpon those boughes which shake against the could,
Bare rn'wd quiers, where late the sweet birds sang.
In me thou seest the twi-light of such day,
As after Sun-set fadeth in the West,
Which by and by blacke night doth take away,
Deaths second selfe that seals vp all in rest.
In me thou seest the glowing of such fire.
That on the ashes of his youth doth lye,
As the death bed, whereon it must expire,
Consum'd with that which it was nurrisht by
This thou perceu'st, which makes thy loue more strong,
I o loue that well, which thou must leaue ere long.

PVt be contented when that fell areft,
With out all bayle shall carry me away,
My life hath in this line some interest,
Which for memorial still with thee shall stay,
When thou reuewest this, thou doest reuew,
The very part was consecrate to thee,
The earth can haue but earth, which is his due,
My spirit is thine the better part of me,
So then thou hast but lost the dregs of life,
The pray of wormes, my body being dead,
The coward conquest of a wretches knife,

To base of thee to be remembred,

The worth of that, is that which it containes,
And that is this, and this with thee remaines.

O are you to my thoughts as food to life,
Or as fweet feafon'd fhewers are to the ground;
And for the peace of you I hold fuch strife,
As twixt a miser and his wealth is found.
Now proud as an inioyer, and anon
Doubting the filching age will steale his treasure,
Now counting best to be with you alone,
Then betterd that the world may see my pleasure,
Some-time all ful with feasting on your fight,
And by and by cleane starued for a looke,
Possessing or pursuing no delight
Saue what is had, or must from you be tooke.
Thus do I pine and surfet day by day,

Thus do I pine and furfet day by day, Or gluttoning on all, or all away,

Why is my verse so barren of new pride?
So far from variation or quicke change?
Why with the time do I not glance aside
To new found methods, and to compounds strange?
Why write I still all one, euer the same,
And keepe invention in a noted weed,
That every word doth almost sel my name,
Shewing their birth, and where they did proceed?
O know sweet love I alwaies write of you,
And you and love are still my argument:
So all my best is dressing old words new,
Spending againe what is already spent:
For as the Sun is daily new and old,

For as the Sun is daily new and old, So is my loue ftill telling what is told,

Hy glaffe will shew thee how thy beauties were,
Thy dyall how thy pretious mynuits waste,

The

The vacant leaves thy mindes imprint will beare.
And of this booke, this learning maift thou tafte.
The wrinckles which thy glaffe will truly show,
Of mouthed graves will give thee merrorie,
Thou by thy dyals shady stealth maist know,
Times thereigh progresse to eternitie.
Looke what thy memorie cannot containe,
Commit to these waste blacks, and thou shalt finde
Those children nurst, deliverd from thy braine,
To take a new acquaintance of thy minde.

These offices, so oft as thou wilt looke, Shall profit thee, and much inrich thy booke.

O of chaue Linuok'd thee for my Muse,
And found such faire affishance in my verse,
As every Alien pen hath got my vie,
And vnder thee their poole disperse.
Thine eyes, that taught the dumbe on high to sing.
And heavie ignorance aloft to flie,
Have added fethers to the learneds wing,
And given grace a double Maiestie.
Yet be most proud of that which I compile,
Whose influence is thine, and borne of thee,
In others workes thou doost but mend the stile,
And Arts with thy sweete graces graced be.
But thou art al. my art, and doost advance
As high as learning, my rude ignorance.

M/Hilft I alone did call vpon thy ayde,
My verse alone had all thy gentle grace,
But now my gracious numbers are decayde,
And my sick Muse doth give an other place.
I grant (sweet love) thy lovely argument
Deserves the travaile of a worthier pen,
Yet what of thee thy Poet doth invent,
He robs thee of, and payes it thee againe,

He lends thee vertue, and he stole that word. From thy behaulour, beautie doth he give And found it in thy cheeke: he can affoord No praise to thee, but what in thee doth liue.

Then thanke him not for that which he doth fay. Since what he owes thee, thou thy felfe dooft pay,

How I faint when I of you do write, How I raine when a car, Knowing a better spirit doth vse your name, And in the praise thereof spends all his might, To make me toung-tide speaking of your fame. But fince your worth (wide as the Ocean is) The humble as the proudest faile doth beare, My fawfie barke (inferior farre to his) On your broad maine doth wilfully appeare. Your shallowest helpe will hold me vp a floate, Whilfthe vpon your foundlesse deepe doth ride. Or (being wrackt) I am a worthlesse bote, He of tall building, and of goodly pride.

Then If he thriue and I be cast away, The worst was this, my loue was my decay.

R I shall live your Epitaph to make. Or you furuiue when I in earth am rotten, From hence your memory death cannot take, Although in me each part will be forgotten. Your name from hence immortall life shall have, Though I (once gone) to all the world must dye, The earth can yeeld me but a common graue, When you intombed in mens eyes shall Ive. Your monument shall be my gentle verse, Which eyes not yet created shall ore-read. And toungs to be, your beeing shall rehearse, When all the breathers of this world are dead.

You still shall live (such vertue hath my Pen) Where breath most breaths, even in the mouths of men.

82

Grant thou wert not married to my Muse. And therefore maiest without attaint ore-looke The dedicated words which writers vie Of their faire subject, bleffing every booke. Thou art as faire in knowledge as in hew, Finding thy worth a limmit past my praise, And therefore art inforc'd to feeke anew. Some fresher stampe of the time bettering dayes. And do so loue, yet when they have denisde, What strained touches Rhethorick can lend. Thou truly faire, wert truly simpathizde, In true plaine words, by thy true telling friend. And their groffe painting might be better vi'd,

Where cheekes need blood, in thee it is abuf d.

Neuer faw that you did painting need, And therefore to your faire no painting fet, I found (or thought I found) you did exceed, The barren tender of a Poets debt: And therefore haue I flept in your report, That you your felfe being extant well might show, How farre a moderne quill doth come to short, Speaking of worth, what worth in you doth grow, This filence for my finne you did impute, Which shall be most my glory being dombe, For I impaire not beautie being mute, When others would give life, and bring a tombe. There liues more life in one of your faire eyes,

Then both your Poets can in praise deuise.

7.7Ho is it that sayes most, which can say more, Then this rich praise, that you alone, are you, In whose confine immured is the store, Which should example where your equall grew, Leane penurie within that Pen doth dwell,

That to his subject lends not some small glory,
But he that writes of you, if he can tell,
That you are you, so dignifies his story.
Let him but coppy what in you is writ,
Not making worse what nature made so cleere.
And such a counter-part shall same his wit,
Making his stile admired enery where.
You to your beautious blessings adde a cusse,
Being fond on praise, which makes your praises worse.

Y toung-tide Muse in manners holds her still,
While comments of your praise richly compil'd,
Reserve their Character with goulden quill,
And precious phrase by all the Muses sil'd.
I thinke good thoughts, whilst other write good wordes,
And like volettered clarke still crie Amen,
To every Humne that able spirit affords;
In polisht for ne of well refined pen.
Hearing you praise, I say 'tis so, 'tis true,
And to the most of praise adde some-thing more,
But that is in my thought, whose love to you
(Though words come hind-most) holds his ranke before,
Then others for the breath of words research

Then others, for the breath of words respect, Me for my dombe thoughts, speaking in effect.

Which nightly guils him with intelligence,

As it the proud full faile of his great verse,
Bound for the prize of (all to precious) you,
That did my ripe thoughts in my braine inhearce,
Making their tombe the wombe wherein they grew?
Was it his spirit, by spirits taught to write,
Aboue a mortall pitch, that struck me dead?
No, neither he, nor his compiers by night
Giuing him ayde, my verse assonished.
He nor that affable familiar ghost
Which nightly guils him with intelligence,
As victors of my silence cannot boast,

Iwas not fick of any fearc from thence.

But when your countinance fild vp his line,
Then lackt I matter, that infeebled mine.

Arewell thou art too deare for my possessing,
And like enough thou knowst thy estimate,
The Chaster of thy worth gives thee releasing:
My bounds in thee are all determinate.
For how do I hold thee but by thy granting,
And for that ritches where is my deserving?
The cause of this faire guist in me is wanting,
And so my pattent back againe is swerning.
Thy selfe thou gau'st, thy owne worth then not knowing,
On mee to whom thou gau'st it, else mistaking,
So thy great guist vpon insprision growing,
Comes home againe, on better sudgement making.
Thus have I had thee as a dreame doth flatter,
In sleepe a King, but waking no such matter.

When thou shalt be dispode to set me light,
And place my merrit in the eie of skorne,
Vpon thy side, against my selfe ile sight,
And proue thee virtuous, though thou art forsworne:
With mine owne weakenesse being best acquainted,
Vpon thy part I can set downe a story
Offaults conceald, wherein I am attainted:
That thou in loosing me.shalt win much glory.
And I by this wil be a gainer too,
For bending all my louing thoughts on thee,
The injuries that to my selfe I doe,
Doing thee vantage, duble vantage me.
Such is my loue, to thee I so belong,
That for thy right, my selfe will beare all wrong.

Ay that thou didst for sake mee for some falt,
And I will comment upon that offence,

The

Against thy reasons making no defence.
Thou canst not (loue) disgrace me halfe so ill,
To set a forme vpon desired change,
As ile my felse disgrace, knowing thy wil,
I will acquaintance strangle and looke strange:
Be absent from thy walkes and in my tongue,
Thy sweet beloued name no more shall dwell,
Least I (too much prophane) should do it wronge:
And haplie of our old acquaintance tell.

For thee, against my selfe ile vow debate, For I must nere loue him whom thou dost hate.

Then hate me when thou wilt, if euer, now,
Now while the world is bent my deeds to croffe,
Ioyne with the spight of fortune, make me bow,
And doe not drop in for an after losse.
Ah doe not, when my heart hath scapte this forrow,
Come in the rereward of a conquerd woe,
Giue not a windy night a rainie morrow,
To linger out a purposed ouer-throw.
If thou wilt leaue me, do not leaue me last,
When other pettie grieses haue done their spight,
But in the onset come, so stall I taste
At first the very worst of fortunes might.
And other straines of woe, which now seeme woe,
Compar'd with losse of thee, will not seeme so.

Some glory in their birth, some in their skill,
Some in their wealth, some in their bodies force,
Some in their garments though new-fangled ill:
Some in their Hawkes and Hounds, some in their Horse.
And every humor hath his adjunct pleasure,
Wherein it findes a joy aboue the rest,
But these perticulers are not my measure,
All these I better in one generall best.

SONNETS,

Thy loue is bitter then high birth to me, Richer then wealth, prouder then garments cost, Of more delight then Hawkes or Horses bee: And having thee, of all mens pride I boaft. Wretched in this alone, that thou maist take,

All this away, and me most wretched make.

QVt doe thy worst to steale thy selfs away, Pror tearme of life thou art affured mine, And life no longer then thy loue will stay, For it depends upon that loue of thine. Then need I not to feare the worst of wrongs, When in the least of them my life hath end, I see, a better state to me belongs Then that, which on thy humor doth depend. Thou canst not vex me with inconstant minde, Since that my life on thy reuolt doth lie, Oh what a happy title do I finde, Happy to haue thy loue, happy to die! But whats so blessed faire that feares no blot, Thou maist be falce, and yet I know it not,

O shall I live, supposing thou art true, Like a deceived husband, so loves face, May still feeme loue to me, though alter'd new: Thy lookes with me, thy heart in other place. For their can liue no hatred in thine eye, Therefore in that I cannot know thy change, In manies lookes, the falce hearts history Is writin moods and frounes and wrinckles strange, But heauen in thy creation did decree, That in thy face sweet loue should euer dwell, What ere thy thoughts, or thy hearts workings be, Thy lookes should nothing thence, but sweetnesse tell, How like Eaues apple doth thy beauty grow, If thy fweet vertue answere not thy show.

SHARF-SPEARES

Hey that have powre to hurt, and will doe none, That doe not do the thing, they most do showe, Who mouing others, are themselves as stone, Vnmooued, could, and to temptation flow: They rightly do inherrit heavens graces, And husband natures ritches from expence, They are the Lords and owners of their faces, Others, but stewards of their excellence: The fommers flowre is to the fommer fweet, Though to it selfe, it onely live and die, But if that flowre with base infection meete. The basest weed out-braues his dignity: For fweetest things turne sowrest by their deedes,

Lillies that fester, smell far worte then weeds,

Ow fweet and louely dost thou make the shame, Which like a canker in the fragrant Rose, Doth spot the beautie of thy budding name? Oh in what sweets doest thou thy sinnes inclose! That tongue that tells the story of thy daies, (Making lasciulous comments on thy sport) Cannot dispraise, but in a kinde of praise, Naming thy name, bleffes an ill report. Oh what a mansion haue those vices got, Which for their habitation chose out thee, Where beauties vaile doth couer euery blot, And all things turnes to faire, that eies can fee! Take heed (deare heart) of this large priviledge, The hardest knife ill vs d doth loose his edge.

COme fay thy fault is youth, some wantonesse, Some say thy grace is youth and gentle sport, Both grace and faults are lou'd of more and leffe: Thou maket faults graces, that to thee refort: As on the finger of a throned Queene.

The basest Iewell wil be well esteem'd: So are those errors that in thee are seene. To truths translated, and for true things deem'd. How many Lambs might the sterne Wolfe betray, If like a Lambe he could his lookes translate. How many gazers mighft thou lead away, If thou wouldst vse the strength of all thy state? But doe not fo, I love thee in such fort, As thou being mine, mine is thy good report.

Ow like a Winter hath my absence beene
From thee, the pleasure of the fleeting yeare? What freezings have I felt, what darke daies feene? What old Decembers bareneffe euery where? And yet this time remou'd was fommers time, The teeming Autumne big with ritch increase, Bearing the wanton burthen of the prime, Like widdowed wombes after their Lords deceafe: Yet this aboundant issue seem'd to me, But hope of Orphans, and vn-fathered fruite, For Sommer and his pleasures waite on thee, And thou away, the very birds are mute.

Or if they fing, tis with fo dull a cheere, That leaves looke pale, dreading the Winters neere.

Rom you have I beene absent in the spring, When proud pide Aprill (dreft in all his trim) Hath put a spirit of youth in every thing: That heavie Saturne laught and leapt with him. Yet nor the laies of birds, nor the sweet smell Of different flowers in odor and in hew, Could make me any fummers flory tell: Or from their proud lap pluck them where they grew: Nor did I wonder at the Lillies white, Nor praise the deepe vermillion in the Rose, They weare but sweet, but figures of delight: Drawne

Drawne after you, you patterne of all those. Yet seem'd it Winter still, and you away, As with your shaddow I with these did play.

The forward violet thus did I chide,
Sweet theefe whence didft thou steale thy sweet that
If not from my loues breath, the purple pride, (smels
Which on thy soft checke for complexion dwells!
In my loues veines then hast too grosely died,
The Lillie I condemned for thy hand,
And buds of marierom had stolne thy haire,
The Roses fearefully on thornes did stand,
Our blushing shame, an other white dispaire:
A third nor red, nor white, had stolne of both,
And to his robbry had annext thy breath,
But for his thest in pride of all his growth
A yengfull canker eate him vp to death,
More slowers I noted yet I none could see.

More flowers I noted, yet I none could fee, But sweet, or culler it had stolne from thee.

VV Here art thou Muse that thou forgets so long,
To speake of that which gives thee all thy might?
Spends thou thy furie on some worthlesse songe,
Darkning thy powre to lendbase subjects light.
Returne forgetfull Muse, and straight redeeme,
In gentle numbers time so idely spent,
Sing to the eare that doth thy laies esteeme,
And gives thy pen both skill and argument.
Rise resty Muse, my loves sweet face survay,
If time have any wrincle graven there,
If any, be a Satine to decay,
And make times spoiles dispised every where.

Giue my loue fame faster then time wasts life, So thou preuenst his steth, and crooked knise,

H truant Muse what shalbe thy amends,

For thy neglect of truth in beauty di'd?

Both truth and beauty on my loue depends:

So dost thou too, and therein dignisi'd:

Make answere Muse, wilt thou not haply faie,

Truth needs no collour with his collour fixt,

Beautie no pensell, beauties truth to lay:

But best is best, if neuer intermixt.

Because he needs no praise, wilt thou be dumb?

Excuse not silence so, for't lies in thee,

To make him much out-live a gilded tombe:

And to be praised of ages yet to be.

Then do thy office Muse, I teach thee how, To make him seeme long hence, as he showes now.

That loue is marchandiz'd, whose ritch esteeming,
The owners tongue doth publish enery where.
Our loue was new, and then but in the spring,
When I was wont to greet it with my laies,
As Philomell in summers front doth singe,
And stops his pipe in growth of riper daies:
Not that the summer is lesse pleasant now
Then when her mournefull himns did hush the night,
But that wild musick burthens enery bow,
And sweets growne common loose their deare delight.
Therefore like her, I some-time hold my tongue:
Because I would not dull you with my songe.

102

Lack what pouerty my Muse brings forth,
That having such a skope to show her pride,
The argument all bare is of more worth
Then when it hath my added praise beside.
Oh blameme not if I no more can write!
Looke in your glasse and there appeares a face,
That ouer-goes my blunt invention quite,
Dulling my lines, and doing me disgrace.

G 2

Were

Were it not finfull then striuing to mend, To marre the subject that before was well, For to no other passe my verses tend, Then of your graces and your gifts to tell.

And more, much more then in my verse can sit, Your owne glasse showes you, when you looke in it.

104

To me faire friend you neuer can be old,
For as you were when first your eye I eyde,
Such seemes your beauties still: Three Winters colde,
Haue from the forrests shooke three summers pride,
Three beautious springs to yellow Autumne turn'd,
In processe of the seasons haue I seene,
Three Aprill persumes in three hot Junes burn'd,
Since first I saw you fresh which yet are greene.
Ah yet doth beauty like a Dyall hand,
Steale from his sigure, and no pace perceiu'd,
So your sweete hew, which me thinkes still doth stank
Hath motion, and mine eye may be deceaued.

For feare of which, heare this thou age vnbred, Ere you were borne was beauties summer dead,

Et not my loue be cal'd Idolatrie,
Nor my beloued as an Idoll show,
Since all alike my songs and praises be
To one, of one, still such, and euer so.
Kinde is my loue to day, to morrow kinde,
Still constant in a wondrous excellence,
Therefore my verse to constancie confin'de,
One thing expressing, leaues out difference.
Faire, kinde, and true, is all my argument,
Faire, kinde and true, varrying to other words,
And in this change is my inuention spent,
Three theams in one, which wondrous scope affords.
Faire, kinde, and true, haue often liu'd alone.

Which three till now, neuer kept seate in one.

106

Hen in the Chronicle of wasted time,
I see discriptions of the fairest wights,
and beautie making beautifull old rime,
praise of Ladies dead, and louely Knights,
nen in the blazon of sweet beauties best,
shand, of soote, of lip, of eye, of brow,
ee their antique Pen would have exprest,
uen such a beauty as you maisser now.

all their praises are but prophesies
f this our time, all you presiguring, and for they look'd but with deniming eyes,
hey had not still enough your worth to sing:
For we which now behold these present dayes,
Haue eyes to wonder, but lack toungs to praise.

107

Ot mine owne feares, nor the prophetick foule,
Of the wide world, dreaming on things to come,
an yet the leafe of my true loue controule,
uppossed as forseit to a confin'd doome.
The mortall Moone hath her eclipse indur'de,
and the sad Augurs mock their owne presage,
accretenties now crowne them-sclues assur'de,
and peace proclaimes Oliues of endlesse age.
Iow with the drops of this most balmie time,
say loue lookes fresh, and death to me subscribes,
ince spight of him Ile liue in this poore rime,
While he insults ore dull and speachlesse tribes.

And thou in this shalt finde thy monument, When tyrants crests and tombs of brasse are spent.

801

What's in the braine that Inck may character,
Which hath not figur'd to thee my true pirit.
What's new to speake, what now to register,
That may expresse my loue, or thy deare merit?
Nothing sweet boy, but yet like prayers divine,

G3

I must each day say ore the very same,
Counting no old thing old, thou mine, I thine,
Euen as when first I hallowed thy faire name.
So that eternall loue in loues fresh case,
Waighes not the dust and iniury of age,
Nor gives to necessary wrinckles place.
But makes antiquitie for aye his page,
Finding the first conceit of loue there bred,
Where time and outward forme would shew it dead,

109

Neuer say that I was false of heart,
Though absence seem'd my stame to quallisse,
As easic might I from my selfe depart,
As from my soule which in thy brest doth lye:
That is my home of loue, if I haue rang'd,
Like him that trauels I returne againe,
Iust to the time, not with the time exchang'd,
So that my selfe bring water for my staine,
Neuer beleeue though in my nature raign'd,
All frailties that besiege all kindes of blood,
That it could so preposterouslie be stain'd,
To leaue for nothing all thy summe of good:
For nothing this wide Vniuerse I call,
Saue thou my Rose, in it thou art my all.

110

Las 'tis true, I haue gone here and there,
And made my selfe a motley to the view,
Gor'd mine own thoughts, sold cheap what is most deare,
Made old offences of affections new.
Most true it is, that I haue lookt on truth
Asconce and strangely: But by all aboue,
These blenches gaue my heart an other youth,
And worse essaies prou'd thee my best of loue,
Now all is done, haue what shall haue no end,
Mine appetite I neuer more will grin'de
On newer proose, to trie an older friend,
A God in loue, to whom I am confin'd.

Then give me welcome, next my heaven the best, Euen to thy pure and most most louing brest.

Yer my fake doe you wish fortune chide, The guiltie goddesse of my harmfull deeds, That did not better for my life prouide, Then publick meanes which publick manners breeds. Thence comes it that my name receives a brand, And almost thence my nature is subdu'd To what it workes in,like the Dyers hand, Pitty me then, and wish I were renu'de, Whilft like a willing pacient I will drinke, Potions of Eysell gainst my strong infection, No bitternesse that I will bitter thinke, Nor double pennance to correct correction. Pittie me then deare friend, and I assure yee,

Euen that your pittie is enough to cure mee.

YOur love and pittie doth th'impression fill, Which vulg ar scandall stampt vpon my brow, For what care I who calles me well or ill. So you ore-greene my bad, my good alow? You are my All the world, and I must striue, To know my shames and praises from your tounge, None else to me, nor I to none aline, That my steel'd sence or changes right or wrong, In so prosound Abisme I throw all care Of others voyces, that my Adders fence, To cryttick and to flatterer stopped are: Marke how with my neglect I doe dispence. You are so strongly in my purpose bred, That all the world besides me thinkes y are dead,

Since Heft you, mine eye is in my minde, And that which gouernes me to goe about, Doth part his function, and is partly blind,

Seemes feeing, but effectually is out: For it no forme delivers to the heart Of bird, of flowre, or shape which it doth lack, Of his quick objects hath the minde no part, Nor his owne vision houlds what it doth catch: For if it see the rud'st or gentlest sight, The most sweet-fauor or deformedst creature, The mountaine, or the sea, the day, or night: The Croe, or Doue, it shapes them to your feature. Incapable of more repleat, with you, My most true minde thus maketh mine yntrue.

R whether doth my minde being crown'd with you Drinke vp the monarks plague this flattery? Or whether shall I say mine eie saith true, And that your love taught it this Aleumie? To make of monsters, and things indigest, Such cherubines as your sweet selfe resemble. Creating every bad a perfect best As fast as objects to his beames assemble: Oh tis the first, tis flatry in my seeing, And my great minde most kingly drinkes it vp. Mine eie well knowes what with his gust is greeing, And to his pallat doth prepare the cup. If it be poison'd, tis the lesser sinne,

That mine eye loues it and doth first beginne.

Hose lines that I before haue writ doe lie, Euen those that said I could not loue you deerer, Yet then my judgement knew no reason why, My most full flame should afterwards burne cleerer. But reckening time, whose milliond accidents Creepe in twixt vowes, and change decrees of Kings, Tan facred beautie, blunt the sharp'st intents. Divert strong mindes to th' course of altring things: Alas why fearing of times tiranie,

Might

Might I not then fay now I loue you best, When I was certaine ore in-certainty, Crowning the present, doubting of the rest: Loue is a Babe, then might I not fay fo To give full growth to that which still doth grow.

Et me not to the marriage of true mindes

Admit impediments, loue is not loue Which alters when it alteration findes, Or bends with the remouer to remoue. O no, it is an euer fixed marke That lookes on tempests and is never shaken; It is the star to euery wandring barke, Whose worths vnknowne, although his higth be taken. Lou's not Times foole, though rofie lips and cheeks Within his bending fickles compaffe come, Loue alters not with his breefe houres and weekes. But beares it out even to the edge of doome: If this be error and vpon me proued,

I neuer writ, nor no man euer loued.

Ccuse me thus that I have scanted all, Mherein Ishould your great deserts repay, Forgot vpon your dearest loue to call, Where o al bonds do tie me day by day, That I have frequent binne with voknown mindes, And given to time your owne deare purchaf'd right, That I have hoysted faile to al the windes Which should transport me farthest from your sight. Booke both my wilfulnesse and errors downe, And on iust proofe surmile, accumilate, Bring me within the leuel of your frowne, But shoote not at me in your wakened hate: Since my appeale saies I did striue to prooue

The constancy and virtue of your loue

Ike as to make our appetites more keene
With eager compounds we our pallat vrge,
As to preuent our malladies vnseene,
We sicken to shun sicknesse when we purge.
Euen so being full of your nere cloying sweetnesse,
To bitter sawces did I frame my feeding;
And sicke of wel-fare found a kind of meetnesse,
To be diseas dere that there was true needing.
Thus pollicie in loue t'anticipate
The ills that were, not grew to faults assured,
And brought to medicine a healthfull state
Which rancke of goodnesse would by ill be cured.
But thence I learne and find the lesson true,
Drugs poyson him that so fell sicke of you.

IIG

Distil d from Lymbecks foule as hell within,
Applying feares to hopes, and hopes to feares,
Still loosing when I saw my felse to win?
What wretched errors hath my heart committed,
Whist it hath thought it selse so blessed neuer?
How have mine eies out of their Spheares bene sitted
In the distraction of this madding seuer?
O benefit of ill, now I find true
That better is, by euil still made better.
And ruin'd love when it is built anew
Growes fairer then at first, more strong, far greater.
So I returne rebukt to my content,
And gaine by ills thrise more then I have spent.

Hat you were once whind be-friends mee now, And for that forrow, which I then didde feele, Needes must I wader my transgression bow, Vnlesse my Nerues were brasse or hammered steele. For if you were by my vnkindnesse shaken

As I by yours, y have past a hell of Time,
And I a tyrant have no leasure taken
To waigh how once I suffered in your crime.
O that our night of wo might have remembred
My deepest sence, how hard true sorrow hits,
And soone to you, as you to me then tendred
The humble salue, which wounded bosomes sits!
But that your trespasse now becomes a fee,
Mine ransoms yours, and yours must ransome mee.

21

TIS better to be vile then vile esteemed,
When not to be, receives reproach of being,
And the iust pleasure lost, which is so deemed,
Not by our feeling, but by others seeing.
For why should others false adulterat eyes
Giue salutation to my sportiue blood?
Or on my frailties why are frailer spies;
Which in their wils count bad what I think good?
Noe, I am that I am, and they that leuell
At my abuses, reckon up their owne,
I may be straight though they them-selues be beuel
By their rancke thoughtes, my deedes must not be shown

Vnlesse this generall euill they maintaine, All men are bad and in their badnesse raigne.

Thy guift, thy tables, are within my braine
Full characterd with lasting memory,
Which shall aboue that idle rancke remaine
Beyond all date euen to eternity.
Or at the least, so long as braine and heart
Haue facultie by nature to subsist,
Til each to raz'd obliuion yeeld his part
Of thee, thy record neuer can be mist:
That poore retention could not so much hold,
Nor need I tallies thy deare loue to skore,
Therefore to give them from me was I bold,
H 2

To trust those tables that recease thee more, To keepe an adjunckt to remember thee, Were to import forgetfulnesse in mec.

O! Time, thou shalt not bost that I doe change, Thy pyramyds buylt vp with newer might To me are nothing nouell, nothing strange, They are but dreffings of a former fight: Our dates are breefe, and therefor we admire, What thou dost foyst vpon vs that is ould, And rather make them borne to our defire, Then thinke that we before have heard them toulds Thy registers and thee I both defie, Not wondring at the present, nor the past, For thy records, and what we see doth lye, Made more or les by thy continuall haft:

This I doe yow and this shall ever be, I will be true dispight thy syeth and thee.

T F my deare loue were but the childe of state, It might for fortunes basterd be vnfathered, As fubiect to times love, or to times hate, Weeds among weeds, or flowers with flowers gatherd. No it was buylded far from accident, It suffers not in smilinge pomp, nor falls Vnder the blow of thralled discontent, Whereto th'inuiting time our fashion calls: It feares not policy that Heriticke, Which workes on leases of short numbred howers. But all alone stands hugely pollitick, That it nor growes with heat, nor drownes with showres. To this I witnes call the foles of time, Which die for goodnes, who have liu'd for crime.

VVEr't ought to me I bore the canopy, With my extern the outward honoring,

Or layd great bases for eternity,
Which proues more short then wast or ruining?
Haue I not seene dwellers on forme and fauor
Lose all, and more by paying too much rent
For compound sweet; Forgoing simple sauor,
Pittifull thriuors in their gazing spent.
Noe, let me be obsequious in thy heart,
And take thou my oblacion, poore but free,
Which is not mixt with seconds, knows no art,
But mutuall render onely me for thee.
Hence, thou subbornd Informer, a trew soule

Hence, thou subbornd Informer, a trew soule When most impeacht, stands least in thy controule.

Thou my louely Boy who in thy power,
Doest hould times sickle glasse, his sickle, hower:
Who hast by wayning growne, and therein shou'st,
Thy louers withering, as thy sweet selte grow'st.
If Nature (soueraine misteres ouer wrack)
As thou goest onwards still will plucke thee backe,
She keepes thee to this purpose, that her skill.
May time disgrace, and wretched mynuit kill.
Yet feare her O thou minnion of her pleasure,
She may detaine, but not still keepe her tresure!
Her Audite (though delayd) answer'd must be,
And her Quietus is to render thee.

In the ould age blacke was not counted faire,
Or if it weare it bore not beauties name:
But now is blacke beauties fucceffine heire,
And Beautie flanderd with a baftard shame,
For since each hand hath put on Natures power,
Fairing the foule with Aits famse borrow'd face,
Sweet beauty hath no name no holy boure,
But is prophan'd, if not lines in difgrace.

H 3

Therefore

Therefore my Mistersse eyes are Rauen blacke, Her eyes so suted, and they mourners seeme, At such who not borne faire no beauty lack, Slandring Creation with a salse esteeme,

Yet so they mourne becomming of their woe, That every toung saies beauty should looke so.

L Ow oft when thou my musike musike playst,
Vpon that blessed wood whose motion sounds
With thy sweet singers when thou gently swayst,
The wiry concord that mine eare consounds,
Do I enuie those Iackes that nimble leape,
To kisse the tender inward of thy hand,
Whilst my poore lips which should that haruest reape,
At the woods bouldnes by thee blushing stand.
To be so tikled they would change their state,
And situation with those dancing chips,
Ore whome their singers walke with gentle gate,
Making dead wood more bless then living lips,
Since sausse Iackes so happy are in this,
Give them their singers, me thy lips to kisse.

Y Mistres eyes are nothing like the Sunne, Currall is farre more red, then her lips red, If fnow be white, why then her brests are dun: If haires be wiers, black wiers grow on her head: I have scene Roses damaskt, red and white, But no such Roses see I in her cheekes, And in some perfumes is there more delight. Then in the breath that from my Mistres reekes. I loue to heare her speake, yet well I know, That Musicke hath a farre more pleasing sound: I graunt I neuer faw a goddeffe goe, My Mistres when shee walkes treads on the ground, And yet by heaven I thinke my loue as rare, As any she beli'd with false compare.

Hou art as tiranous, so as thou art, As those whose beauties proudly make them cruells For well thou know'st to my deare doting hart Thou art the fairest and most precious Iewell. Yet in good faith some say that thee behold, Thy face hath not the power to make love grone; To fay they erre, I dare not be so bold, Although I sweare it to my selfe alone. And to be fure that is not false I sweare A thousand grones but thinking on thy face, One on anothers necke do witnesse beare Thy blacke is fairest in my judgements place. In nothing art thou blacke faue in thy deeds,

And thence this slaunder as I thinke proceeds.

Hine cies I loue, and they as pittying me, Knowing thy heart torment me with disdaine, Haue put on black, and louing mourners bee, Looking with pretty ruth vpon my paine,

And truly not the morning Sun of Heauen Better becomes the gray cheeks of th' East. Nor that full Starre that vihers in the Eauen Doth halfe that glory to the fober West As those two morning eyes become thy face: O let it then as well befeeme thy heart To mourne for me since mourning doth thee grace, And fute thy pitty like in cuery part-

Then will I sweare beauty her selfe is blacke, And all they foule that thy complexion lacke.

BEshrew that heart that makes my heart to groane For that deepe wound it gives my friend and me; I'll not ynough to torture me alone, But flaue to flauery my sweet it friend must be. Me from my felfe thy cruell eye hath taken, And my next felfe thou harder hast ingrossed, Of him, my felfe, and thee I am forfaken. A torment thrice three-fold thus to be croffed: Prison my heart in thy steele bosomes warde, But then my friends heart let my poore heart bale, Who ere keepes me, let my heart be his garde, Thou canst not then vse rigor in my Taile. And yet thou wilt, for I being pent in thee,

Perforce am thine and all that is in me.

SO now I have confest that he is thine, And I my felfe ammorgag'd to thy will, My selfe Ile forfeit, so that other mine, Thou wilt restore to be my comfort still: But thou wilt not, nor he will not be free, For thou art couetous, and he is kinde, He learnd but furetie-like to write for me, Vnder that bond that him as fast doth binde. The statute of thy beauty thou wilt take, Thou viurer that put'it forth all to vie,

And sue a friend, came debter for my sake, So him I loose through my vnkinde abuse. Him haue I lost, thou hast both him and me, He pases the whole, and yet am I not free.

Ho ever hath her wish, thou hast thy Will,
And Will too boote, and Will in over-plus,
More then enough am I that vexe thee still,
To thy sweet will making addition thus.
Wilt thou whose will is large and spatious,
Not once vouchsafe to hide my will in thine,
Shall will in others sceme right gracious,
And in my will no faire acceptance shine:
The sea all water, yet receives raine still,
And in aboundance addeth to his store,
So thou beeing rich in Will adde to thy Will,
